Forecast For Scotland
Issued by Met Office Aberdeen
at 0400 on Tuesday 02 Feb 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Rain and snow feeding in from the southwest.

Today:
Cloudy with rain, sleet and snow pushing up from the south through the day, reaching all but the far north, where there will be sunny spells. A mix of scattered wintry showers and sunny spells for the Northern Isles.

Tonight:
Outbreaks of rain, sleet and snow continuing through this evening and overnight, with the far north holding on to drier conditions. Cold with risk of icy patches.

Wednesday:
There will be little change through the day tomorrow with rain, sleet and snow persisting, staying cold in easterly winds.

Outlook for Thursday to Saturday:
Remaining unsettled with further rain, sleet and snow through the end of the week across the country, with cold easterly winds.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.